March was given to April 17th to make any further answer.

Mr. March has filed and answer in which he sets out that the result of the election count was the unanimous action of the election board, including the minority inspector and his clerk, and denied that any legal votes cast for W. Shortly after 11 o'clock Mr. Little, with Robert King and Will Eckert, started for Hunterstown in a wagon drawn by a pair of horses. They had the spraying apparatus on the wagon. The horses took fright and ran away. Mr. Little was thrown in such a way that a foot was caught and he was dragged a distance of thirty yards. Strubinger as agent for the plaintiff, paid the full sum due and owing in checks, cash and notes." The plaintiff asked for judgment for want of a sufficient affidavit of defense, contending that dates, amounts, manner and other circumstances of payment should have been set out. Town Burglary.

The home of A. Calvin Basehoar on York street was entered by a burglar on Sunday night. How entrance was made is a matter of surmise. The kitchen door was found unlocked the next morning. The burglar either gained entrance to the house during the evening before doors were locked and secreted himself and was able to let himself out, or the door was accidentally left unlocked so that there was no trouble to get in. Mrs. Basehoar from the sale of milk kept some money in a cupboard down stairs. This money and the contents of a purse in a back room upstairs was taken amounting to $24. The burglar went about his business very quietly for he did not arouse Mr. and Mrs. Basehoar. A dog in the neighborhood did some barking about midnight and tracks were found in the yard of Will M. From the 25th of April, 1884 to the 25th of April, 1909 Dr. Barkley has served Trinity Reformed Congregation during a period of 25 years, and this silver jubilee will be made a happy occasion. Memorial Day.

As far as arrangements have progressed it is expected to hold Memorial Day exercises on Monday, May 31. If these services would be held on Saturday, May 29, surely an opportunity would be given to many more people to join in them. If held on Monday and following the Regular Monument Dedication on Sunday, the crowd will not be here. If held on Saturday, the day when the rural population can more conveniently attend than any other day, the usual crowd of citizens of the county can be expected to be in attendance, but if they come to the dedication on Sunday they may be unable to come on the following day. Saturday memorial services would in no wise interfere with the dedication on Sunday when large numbers would be here from a distance.

Bank Building is Being Torn Down.

Wm. H. Johns, the contractor for the new bank building of Gettysburg National Bank, has begun work of tearing down the bank building and adjoining residence and by the end of this week there will be very little left of the buildings which have been landmarks in the history of the town.

The site of the new bank building was the home of the Gettysburg National Bank since the organization of the bank, five years less than a hundred years ago. In fact the business of the bank has never been transacted at any other point in the town until the necessary removal to the Winter building while the work of the erection of the new bank is going on. In 1882 when the banking house was erected which is now being torn down, the business of the bank was conducted in the parlors of the cashier's residence.

The original building on this site was the home of John B. McPherson, father of Hon. Edward McPherson. In May, 1814, when the stockholders met and elected a board of thirteen directors. It was also decided that the business of the bank should be conducted in the house of John B. McPherson in the town of Gettysburg. This house was in part the present residence being torn down. The western half of the house was fitted up for bank purposes and in 1882 this part was torn down to give room for the banking house that now gives way for the new building.

The architect has placed in the hands of Wm. McSherry, president of the bank, a picture of the new bank building as it will be when finished and it presents a very handsome appearance. The portico in front begins at the building line and the building is back from the line the width of the portico, which follows the beautiful Greek lines, being supported by four monolith columns. The building will be in effect something entirely different architecturally from any other building in the town.

As has been told before in these columns, the building will be of white Vermont granite on three sides. Wm. H. Johns is the general contractor and contracts have been awarded for the granite work and the interior marble work, to Philadelphia artists.

The Biglerville National Bank will pay at the rate of 3 per cent. interest on money left with it for six months or longer.

—Edward Redding had the pleasure of selling 100 bushels of wheat this week at $1.33 per bushel and Wm. J. Johns sold 175 bushel last week close to $1.30.

Dr. G. M. Phillips of West Chester, prepared a summary of the most important features of the new school code which was passed by the State Legislature and such portions of this summary as apply to Adams county are as follows:

School districts are divided into four classes. Boroughs and townships having a population of more than 3000 are the districts of the third class, and the boroughs and townships having a population of less than 3000 are the districts of the fourth class.

Gettysburg will be a district of the third class and all other districts in the county of the fourth class.

In third class school districts the school boards have nine members elected at large, each two years, for six years.

In the townships and boroughs having a population of less than 3000 which make up the fourth class districts, the school boards will be composed of five members elected at large, one each year for five years.

There are in the State more than 100 independent school districts, composed of small sections cut out of one or more townships. Many of these have outlived their usefulness, and are a barrier to establishing high schools and graded schools. The code abolishes all such independent districts, but provides that in each case the county Court may re-establish those that are really needed.

All plans for new school buildings hereafter contracted for outside of Philadelphia must be submitted to the State Board of Education for its suggestions. These suggestions need not be adopted, but the school boards will have the benefit of expert and experienced criticism and suggestions in building their school buildings without expense to themselves. The advantage of this is evident.

In school buildings more than one story high entrance doors must all open outward, and all present buildings must be made to conform to this law before the opening of the coming school year.

School buildings and grounds may, with the consent of the board of school directors, be used for social, recreation and other proper purposes.

The provision in the present school law requiring a meeting of school directors and teachers before the selection of text-books for the ensuing year has been omitted. The school boards by a majority vote adopt school books, as at present, but text-books cannot be changed oftener than once in five years. At present they may be changed every three years. Sample copies of all text-books used or offered for use in the State must be deposited with the State Board of Education at Harrisburg and the maximum price at which such books will be sold be reported to the State Board of Education.

A State Board of Education is provided for which puts Pennsylvania in line with all the other progressive States in the Union. Forty-two of the States and Territories now have such boards. The ripest experience of other States was followed in making up this important board. The board will consist of seven members, of whom the Superintendent of Public Instruction is to be one. The other six are appointed by the Governor annually for terms of six years, and three of them must be successful educators of high standing, connected with public school system of the State. The others presumably will be professional or business men interested in the public schools. They serve without pay.

This board is required to report and recommend legislation needed to make the public schools more efficient and useful; to prescribe any needed additional regulations for the examination of teachers; to encourage and promote practical education; to provide for the inspection of school buildings and their sanitary equipment, and to standardize the public school system of the State.

A higher standard for teachers is required. Hereafter no teacher may teach for more than five years on the lowest grade of certificate. A teacher by adding two additional branches to this certificate, and by a careful reading of two books on education, may secure a professional certificate, the next higher grade of certificate. This is good for two years, and may be validated in other districts by the endorsement of their superintendents without examination. Such professional certificates can be renewed upon their expiration twice by passing examinations upon two additional branches and the reading of two additional books on education each time.

Permanent State certificates will be granted by committees appointed by the Superintendent of Public Instruction for each county or city, upon examination in all of the common branches and a number of the higher ones. Graduates of reputable colleges who have in college pursued the study of education as recommended by a committee of the college presidents of the State, may be granted certificates by the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and after three years' successful teaching, life certificates valid in all parts of the State.

It may then produce dyspepsia, catarrh, and marked tendency to consumption, before causing eruptions, sores or swellings.

successful teaching, life certificates valid in all parts of the State.

No teacher's certificate can be granted without a physician's health certificate, and no teacher less than 18 years of age can teach in the public schools of the Commonwealth. Provision is made for temporary or permanent special certificates for teachers of manual training, drawing, vocal music, domestic science, kindergarten, etc. All present certificates in force in the State continue to be valid.

Compulsory school attendance is required of all children between the ages of 8 and 16, except that children between 11 and 16 who can read and write the English language intelligently, and who have regular employment, may be excused from school, but in order to be thus excused each such child must have a school certificate certifying as to his age and education, which is issued by the superintendent of schools, principal, or where there is no superintendent or principal, by the secretary of the School Board, and the child's age must be carefully determined. The regulations providing for compulsory school attendance are more careful and stringent, and strict penalties are provided for their violation. Two or more small districts may join in the employment of an attendance officer, to better enforce these laws.

The enrollment of the school children is taken out of the hands of the local assessors, and is to be made by the School Board through the attendance officers, teachers or others employed for this purpose. There has been much neglect in this important matter, and this has interfered with the school attendance and caused loss of a part of the school appropriation in many districts.

The article on health and sanitation contains a number of new and important features. Any school district in the State is authorized to employ a medical inspector, who must be a legally qualified physician, and School Boards whose districts need them may also employ school nurses.

Mr. Dixon, the State Commissioner of Health, arranged with the Commission that his county medical inspectors in every county in the State would, without expense to the districts, act as medical inspectors of all schools whose Boards of Directors did not appoint their own medical inspectors. These medical inspectors are required to examine all pupils for physical defects, especially in sight and hearing. They are also to examine and report upon the sanitary condition of the school buildings and premises. No teachers, pupils or janitors having tuberculosis of the lungs are permitted to be in the public schools.

There has been widespread dissatisfaction with the present vaccination laws of the State, and in hundreds of the school districts the vaccination laws has been entirely ignored, or many children are out of the schools because of the conflict between the vaccination laws and the compulsory school laws. The enforcement of the compulsory vaccination law is put into the hands of the medical inspectors and not into those of the teachers. An examination of vaccination marks on a child's arm is provided, where there is no satisfactory certificate of vaccination. The medical inspector may permit children physically unfit to be vaccinated to attend school until they are able to be vaccinated. He is required to vaccinate free of charge unvaccinated children, with the consent of their parents, and after two unsuccessful attempts at vaccination he may grant a certificate of "immunity" for the remainder of the school year.

If parents will not permit their children to be vaccinated the medical inspector will exclude them from the school, and they cannot return without certificates of vaccination or "immunity." Except in Philadelphia, when the medical inspector reports to a board of school directors that there is no smallpox in the district, nor in such proximity to it as to be, in his judgment, a serious danger, the School Board may by a three-fourths vote admit unvaccinated children to the public schools. But when the local Board of Health, or the county medical inspector notifies the School Board of smallpox in the district, or where it is a serious menace, the School Board must secure the dismissal of all unvaccinated children from the school, and keep out such children from school until the danger is over. Any School Board neglecting or refusing to do this, must be removed by the Court and another appointed in its stead.

The question of holidays have given rise to disputes and confusion. The school code provides that schools must be closed on Saturday, Sunday, the Fourth of July and Christmas, but all other holidays shall be at the discretion of the Board of School Directors of the district.

School boards are given entire control over all athletic games and contests, as well as of school societies and publications.

Townships or boroughs which do not maintain high schools of their own must pay the tuition of pupils in neighboring high schools, and such pupils may at public expense complete the four-year high school course in larger high schools.

School districts may transport children to the high or other schools at the expense of the district, and if schools are closed in order to centralize or grade the schools of the district, there is no loss of State appropriation on account of the closing of such schools.

The distribution of the State appropriation to public schools now depends jointly upon the number of children of school age, the number of teachers employed, and the number of residents taxable in the district. The last factor has always been a troublesome one to determine, and the distribution is simplified by making it depend solely upon the number of children and the number of teachers. While this makes no great change in the distribution of this fund, it helps to some extent the poorer country districts which need it most.

Teachers who do not attend the county institutes, unless excused by the superintendent, forfeit $2 per day for each day's absence. Careful provision is made for the auditing of all institute accounts. Teachers must fulfill their contracts to teach, unless released by their school boards or prevented by sickness, and failure to do so will prevent them from teaching in any public school of the State for the remainder of the year.

A State school fund is provided for by putting into the hands of the State Board of Education one-half of all net receipts from the forest lands of the State. This is to be safely invested and its income used for the benefit of the public schools, and especially to equalize educational advantages of the different parts of the State and to promote education in agriculture and other industrial lines, forestry and the conservation of our natural resources.

New Laws of Pennsylvania.

Up to about April 1 Governor Stuart had approved of forty-six Acts which had passed the Legislature of Pennsylvania and thereby became laws. Such of these new laws as closely affect this community are the following:

The second Act to become a law was the amended Act by which the Gettysburg Battlefield Memorial Commission are allowed to erect the $150,000 memorial on land of the United States. This same law allowed them to put up a building which they refuse to do.

An Act was passed appropriating $90,000 for the expenses of eradicating of the foot and mouth disease among animals.

An Act for the protection of the public health by prohibiting the sale, offering for sale, exposing for sale or having in possession with intent to sell, of eggs unfit for food and prohibiting the use of such eggs in the preparation of food products. A heavy penalty is provided for the violation of this law, not less than a fine of $200 nor more than $1000 or imprisonment of not less than three months and not over nine months.

An Act relating to non-alcoholic drinks, which carbonated beverages of all flavors, sarsaparilla, ginger, ale, soda water, lemonade, orangeade, root beer, grape juice and other non-intoxicating drinks, and prohibiting the manufacture, sale, offering for sale, exposing for sale or having in possession with intent to sell of any such drinks, containing adulterations. The Act names eighteen kinds of adulterations as deleterious to health and prohibited. The penalty is a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100.

An Act to protect the public health and prevent fraud and deception in the manufacture or sale of lard, lard substitutes, imitation lard and lard compounds, with penalty of not less than $50 nor more than $100.

An Act providing that no Common Pleas Judge shall enter a nonsuit of its own motion, by reason of the fact that the Attorneys of record have failed to appear when the case is called for trial.

An Act to conform the organization of the National Guard of Pennsylvania to the requirements of the laws governing the U. S. regulars.

An Act to prohibit druggists from selling carbolic acid except upon the prescription of a physician or on the personal application of some respectable inhabitant of full age.

An Act to provide that in incorporation hereafter of cemeteries that the charter must provide for the setting aside of one tenth of the gross amount of funds arising from sale of lots, as a fund for the perpetual care and preservation of the grounds.

An Act providing in all surety of peace cases in which the evidence does not show that the threats were maliciously made by the defendant and with intent to do harm, and that the prosecutor is actually in danger of being hurt in body or estate, it shall be the duty of the justice to discharge the defendant and he can put costs on prosecutor or defendant or divide them and it is the duty of the justice to suggest a compromise.

An Act to regulate the practice of osteopathy in the State.

An Act to exempt from taxation all hospitals, universities, colleges, seminaries, academies, associations and institutions of learning, benevolence,

DOING THEIR DUTY

Scores of Gettysburg Readers Are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidney's duty.

When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow:

Urinary trouble, diabetes, Doan's Kidney Pills cure them all. Gettysburg people endorse our claim.

Mrs. H. R. Ridinger, 25 Brockenridge St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are by no means a new remedy in my family, as I have often used them with excellent results. Recently I suffered from a constant backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble. I at once went to the People's Drug Store and procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and it only required a few doses to relieve me. I am today without a sign of kidney complaint, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United States.

FEW HERE KNOW THIS

SAYS HOME-MADE TREATMENT CURES ALL RHEUMATISM.

Shake the Ingredients well in the Bottle and Take a Teaspoonful Dose After Meals.

Few people here know that you can cure that dreaded American disease, Rheumatism, with just common, everyday drugs found in any drug store. The prescription is so simple that any one can prepare it at home at small cost. It is made up as follows: Get from any good prescription pharmacy Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. These are all simple ingredients, making an absolutely harmless home remedy at little cost.

Rheumatism, as every one knows, is a symptom of deranged kidneys. It is a condition produced by the failure of the kidneys to properly filter or strain from the blood the uric acid and other matter, which, if not eradicated, either in the urine or through the skin pores, remains in the blood, decomposes and forms about the joints and muscles, causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

This prescription is said to be a splendid healing, cleansing and invigorating tonic to the kidneys, and gives almost immediate relief in all forms of bladder and urinary troubles and backache.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

ABOUT ADVERTISING—NO. 8

The Cellar Hole and the Sewer Hole

By Herbert Kaufman.

A coal cart stopped before an office building in Washington and the driver dismounted, removed the cover from a manhole, ran out his chute, and proceeded to empty the load. An old negro strolled over and stood watching him. Suddenly the black man glanced down and immediately burst into a fit of uncontrollable laughter, which continued for several minutes. The cart driver looked at him in amusement. "Say, Uncle," he asked, "do you always laugh when you see coal going into a cellar?" The negro sputtered around for a few moments and then holding his hands to his aching sides managed to say, "No, sah, but I jest busts when I sees it goin' down a sewer."

The advertiser who displays lack of judgment in selecting the newspapers which carry his copy often confuses the sewer and the cellar.

All the money that is put into newspapers isn't taken out again by any means. The fact that all papers possess a certain physical likeness doesn't by any means signify a similarity in character, and it's character in a newspaper that brings returns. The editor who conducts a journalistic sewer finds a different class of readers than the publisher who respects himself enough to respect his readers.

What goes into a newspaper largely determines the class of homes into which the newspaper goes. An irresponsible, scandal-mongering, muck-raking sheet is logically not supported by the buying classes of people. It may be perused by thousands of readers, but such readers are seldom purchasers of advertised goods.

It's the clean-cut, steady, normal-minded citizens who form the bone and sinew and muscle of the community. It's the sane, self-respecting, dependable newspaper that enters their homes and it's the home sale that indicates the strength of an advertising medium.

No clean-minded father of a family wishes to have his wife and children brought in contact with the most maudlin and banal phases of life. He defends them from the sensational editor and the unpleasant advertiser. He subscribes to a newspaper which he does not fear to leave about the house.

Therefore, the respectable newspaper can always be counted upon to produce more sales than one which may even own a larger circulation but whose distribution is in ten editions among unprofitable citizens.

You can no more expect to sell goods to people who haven't money than you can hope to pluck oysters from bushes.

It isn't the number of readers reached but the number of readers whose purses can be reached that constitutes the value of circulation. It's one thing to arouse their attention, but it's a far different thing to get their money. The mind may be willing, but the pocketbook is weak.

If you had the choice of a thousand acres of desert land or a hundred acres of oasis, you'd select the fertile spot, realizing that the larger tract had less value because it would be less productive.

Just so the advertiser who really understands how he is spending his money does not measure by bulk alone. He counts productivity first. He takes care that he is not putting his money into a sewer.

THE DAYS OF WHITE SLAVES

RESIDENT OFFERS REWARD FOR IRISH SERVANT

Criminals Were Allowed to be Landed Upon Payment of Duty and Sold to Work Out Passage Money.

Mr. John Reed Scott in looking over the files of an old newspaper, Maryland Gazette of Thursday July 11 1765 at the State Capitol at Annapolis, Md., found the following advertisement, of William McClellan, living at Marsh Creek, in what was then York county, afterwards Adams county. The advertisement offers a reward for the return of an Irish convict servant. It is a question whether this Irishman was worth his salt or whether his master was close, for from other advertisements in the same paper, the usual reward was five pounds, about $25 and frequently higher, while the master of Matthias McGuier was only willing to give $15 for the return of his servant. The advertisement is as follows:

Baltimoretown, July 8, 1765.

THREE POUNDS REWARD.

Ran away the 2d of this Instant from the Subscriber, living at Marsh Creek, in York County, an Irish Convict Servant Man, named Matthias McGuier, about 5 feet, 10 inches high, of a dark complexion, with black hair and black beard; Had on when he went away, an old Check Shirt, an old red Jacket Made Sailor's Fashion, with a Large Patch on one Sleeve, and an Old Fel Hat and an old blue Pair of Breeches, old grey Yarn Stockings and an old Pair of Shoes. He passes himself for a Soldier who came from Fort Pitt, and says he is lame of one Arm, he wants to get where there is Shipping to go to Sea.

Whoever takes up and secures the said Servant, so that his Master may have him again, shall have the above Reward, and reasonable Charges if brought home, paid by William McClellan.

N. B. All Masters of Vessels are forbidden taking him away at their Peril.

This advertisement can only be understood by turning to the statutes of that day to make clear how an Irishman could be in fact and law a slave. As early as 1729 the General Assembly of the province of Pennsylvania had passed an act, laying a duty on foreigners and Irish servants imported into the province. It was customary for the masters of vessels and merchants to enter into agreement with poor emigrants, to pay their passage way to this land, upon condition that the emigrant when he reaches these shores would become bound to repay the passage money, and if the emigrant could not work out the passage way for the master of the vessel, why the latter sold him as it were to settlers, to work until the passage was paid.

Europe was doing more in those days that sending the poor, the unfortunate, the persecuted. Criminals and convicts were being shipped to America to get rid of them. In 1842 the General Assembly of Pennsylvania held at Philadelphia passed an act to regulate the importation of convicts, which contains a number of curious provisions.

The preamble to the act sets out whereas many persons trading into the province, have for hire and private gain, imported and sold or disposed of, and daily due import passengers and servants into this province, who by reason of age, impotency or idleness have become a heavy burden and charge upon the inhabitants thereof, and likewise do frequently import divers persons, convicted of heinous crimes, who soon after their coming into this province do often commit felonies, robberies, thefts and burglaries, etc.

Therefore it was enacted that all masters of vessels, merchants and others who shall import, land or bring into any port or place belonging to this province any person in the condition of a servant or otherwise within the intent and meaning of this Act, who have been convicted of any murder, burglary, rape, sodomy, forgery, perjury or any felony at any time before such information. At this point usually follows what will happen to the one disobeying, but the importation of such convicts was to carry no punishment. Convicts were welcome in America provided the master of the vessel paid five pounds for every convict imported, one-half the money to go to the Governor for the support of the government and the other half to the collectors or informers. The master of the vessel was additionally required to become bound for the good behavior of the convict for the space of one year after his importation.

There were other provisions punishing the master of the vessel if he attempted to land the convicts without paying the five pounds duty. Or if he brought an infant, lunatic, aged, married, impotent or vagrant person likely to become a public charge he could be compelled to transport him to the place from which he came.

The result was that the master of vessels, merchants and others imported ship loads of servants and convicts and when they arrived they were auctioned off to the high bidder, servants working out their passage way, and convicts working out their passage and duty of landing, and sometimes bound for the period for which they had been sentenced.

What kind of an Irish convict William McClellan had in Matthias McGuier does not appear, whether convicted of murder, burglary or some other felony. He was anxious enough to the extent of $15 reward to have him back, yet the size of the reward suggests either a cheap or dangerous convict.

Sisters New Spring Hat

Sister's got a new spring hat, one of these waste-basket things: On the top it's kind of flat, bare of ribbons and of wings; It comes down around her neck and it hides her ears from sight; Gee! I don't see why a girl wants to be a screaming' fright.

After pa had took one look at her he let out a dismal sigh; Sister's hat hid half her nose and hung down across one eye; Pa he stood and gazed a while, then at last he sadly spoke; There was something in his voice made me think his heart was broke.

"And they made you pay for that?" pa asked in a dismal tone, As he looked at sister's hat and seemed pained enough to groan; "Made you pay good money which I have worked blame hard to get; All I've got to say is this is the biggest outrage yet!

"Do you s'pose that any beau, while you've got that on," says he, "Would come in and try to win you away from ma and me? There's no use, if you must wear such a blamed outlandish thing, To expect we'll have a chance to get rid of you this spring."

Still, I guess it's hard to make women lose her loveliness; It don't make much difference, after all, the way they dress; Every night some fellow comes courtin' sister just the same, Though she's got a new spring hat That pa calls a sin and shame. —Chicago Record-Herald.

For the Rose Garden.

There were two excuses fifty years ago for banishing the rose from the garden. At that time there were no roses that bloomed all summer, and the old fashioned rose bushes (hybrid perpetuals) were generally unsightly when out of bloom.

Especially were these things true in America, for even to this day the hybrid perpetuals give few flowers, or none after June, as compared with Europe. Also we have more insects and diseases to fight than the Europeans. Our rose bug is worse than all their rose pests put together, and even today we have found no cheap way to control it.

But the old excuses no longer hold good, says Country Life in America. For now we have the hybrid teas, which really bloom all summer (though scantily in August in America), and these roses make graceful bushes (unless they are pruned back severely by people who are willing to sacrifice garden effect in order to get the largest flowers possible for vases).

Moreover, we now have far better climbing roses, especially hybrids of the many flowered and memorial roses, such as Dorothy Perkins and Lady Gay, and therefore we can have better arches, trellises, bowers, arbors and summer houses than ever before. This is the artistic way to get height in a rose garden instead of using standards, which are as ugly as they are perishable.

No one can be blamed for wishing to get some relief from the flatness of the conventional rosery, but tree roses are a grotesque solution, since they cannot hold themselves up but have to be staked. Moreover, they are pitifully thin, whereas these Japanese climbers supply us with the one thing that we have always needed most luxuriance.

The finishing touch, however, in the new type of rose garden is supplied by the carpeting plants, which not only hide the bare earth out give a second crop of flowers from the same ground. The showiest of these effects is that of pansies and violas.

Pansies have bigger flowers and a wider range of colors but a shorter season of bloom, and they have to be raised anew each year from expensive seed. In America they will bloom freely only in the spring. Violas, which are also called tufted pansies, make a much neater carpet, bloom all summer (except for a fortnight's enforced rest), and are more nearly perennial so that when you had a variety to your liking you can propagate by division the identical thing you like best.

Byron W. King's Lecture.

Byron W. King delivered his entertaining lecture, "Folks and Fancies," on last Friday evening to a good sized audience in Brua Chapel. L. M. Buehler's Success.

L. M. Buehler the enterprising druggist rather than await the ordinary methods of introduction, urged the Dr. Howard Co. to secure a quick sale for their celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia by offering the regular 50c bottle at half price.

The wonderful success of this plan was a great surprise even to L. M. Buehler and today there are scores of people here in Gettysburg who are using this remarkable remedy.

So much talk has been caused by this offer, and so many new friends have been made for the specific that the Dr. Howard Co. have authorized Druggist L. M. Buehler to continue this special half-price sale for a limited time longer.

In addition to selling a 50c bottle of Dr. Howard's specific for 25c L. M. Buehler has so much faith in the remedy that he will refund the money to anyone whom it does not cure. When your head aches, your stomach does not digest food easily and naturally when there is constipation, specks before the eyes, tired feeling, giddiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, heart burn, sour stomach, roaring or ringing in the ears, melancholy and liver troubles Dr. Howard's specific will cure you. If it does not, it will not cost you a cent.

College Track Team.

A squad of thirty Gettysburg College men have been practicing for the "varsity" track team to take part in the relay carnival of the University of Pennsylvania on next Saturday. Capt. C. L. S. Raby whose picture appeared in the Public Ledger of Philadelphia on Sunday among the prominent college athletes will take a good team with him and will undoubtedly make a good record for his team.

A number of meets with other institutions have been arranged. On April 24 the relay team will journey to Philadelphia to take part in the big intercollegiate meet on Franklin field. On May 1 to 8 an interclass meet will be held on Nixon field. May 15 Bucknell university will send their team here and a field meet will be held consisting of all the field events, jumping, hurdling, running, shot putting and various other events. A similar meet will be held with Juniata college during May, but will be held at that school and not on Nixon field. On May 28 the entire Gettysburg team will go to Harrisburg to participate in the intercollegiate meet on Island park.

The Prohibitionists of Adams Co. will meet in the Arbitration room of the Court House, Tuesday, April 27th at 2 p. m.

More New Laws.

In addition to the batch of new laws noted on the second page of this issue the following of interest to our people have been provided.

An Act providing that the will of any decedent to be effective against bona fide conveyances or mortgages of the real or personal estate of the decedent must be offered for probate within three years from date of death of decedent.

The intestate act has been amended so that if an intestate shall leave a widow and no issue, the widow will be entitled in addition to all other rights to the sum of $5000 absolutely and one-half of the remaining estate for the term of her life.

An act prescribing a short form of deed and acknowledgment which may be used for conveying and releasing lands. This act should have compelled the recording of all transfers of title.

An act authorizing parties in interest, or their counsel to select auditors and masters needed in judicial proceedings, except in divorce cases.

An act appropriating $295,000 to townships abolishing the work tax on roads, being the fifteen per centum bonus authorized by act of 1905. There are only two townships in Adams Co. participating in this appropriation, Menallen and Straban.

An act to protect trees growing by the roadsides and within the road limits, and providing a penalty for the unlawful killing, removal of or injury to the same.

Governor Stuart had passed up to April 1st upon 60 acts which passed the Legislature. Within the last days of the Legislature 715 new laws were put through and sent to the Governor. Millions of dollars were appropriated beyond the revenues of the State. Gov. Stuart will be busy for the next thirty days wading through this legislation and making income meet expenditures and the result of his work will be made known as it reaches us.

Among the new acts in the hands of Gov. Stuart are the Stuart Highway bill from Philadelphia to Pittsburg, the School Code, a summary of which is given on second page, and the National Guard bill, providing among other things for a permanent division camping ground and three brigade camping grounds and appropriating $50,000 for the purpose and limiting the value to be paid for land to $100 an acre.

An Act known as the Moyer Fish bill passed and simply lets down the bars as to the protection of the fish in Pennsylvania that the Department of Fisheries and all true sportsmen have been working toward for years. The Act makes legal thousands of floats and trotters and nets could be used. The Act prescribes number of fish that may be taken in any one day but does not provide for any penalty of violation. Sportsmen should write in demanding that the Governor veto this bill.

The Act providing for the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg and providing for a commission to arrange for the same with the other States and the Federal government passed the Legislature and is also in the hands of the Governor.

Adams County Representatives.

Senator W. A. Martin and Representative James C. Cole made excellent records in the Legislature that terminated last week, indicating in every way the trust reposed in them by their fellow citizens. They voted against the Republican Machine Legislation, both went on record against the bill opening the doors to benzeneate of soda in food stuffs. Speaker Cox honored Mr. Cole with the gavel in the House for several minutes on one of the last days of the session, and Senator Martin was nominated by the Democrats of the Senate and received all the Democratic votes for President of the Senate from the adjournment to the next session of that body.

Tourists.

Two large parties of tourists visited the battlefield last week, both from the New England States and both stopping at the Eagle Hotel. The first party went over the field on Wednesday. The second part arrived Saturday and spent Sunday on the field, and this party was composed of the Springfield, Mass., Commandery Knight Templars. Each party numbered over a hundred visitors.

Jacob E. Sharets and O. B. Sharets desire to thank their many neighbors and friends who unsolicited lended willing hands in helping to clean up the debris of the big fire, which destroyed the barn and farm buildings of the one and all the live stock and farming implements of the other. Forty or more of the neighbors last week disposed of the dead animals, hauled out the manure yet in barnyard and cleaned up the wreck of the building. It was a great comfort to Messrs. Sharets in their losses to know they had so many friends.

Tonic or Stimulant?

There is an immense difference between a tonic and a stimulant. Up one day, way back the next; that's a stimulant. Steady progress day by day toward perfect health; that's a tonic. "One Touch of Nature Makes the Whole World Kin."

When a rooster finds a big fat worm he calls all the hens in the farm yard to come and share it. A similar trait of human nature is to be observed when a man discovers something exceptionally good—he wants all his friends and neighbors to share the benefits of his discovery. This is the touch of nature that makes the whole world kin. This explains why people who have been cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy write letters to the manufacturers for publication, that others similarly ailing may also use it and obtain relief. Behind every one of these letters is a warm hearted wish of the writer to be of use to someone else. This remedy is for sale by The People's Drug Store.

People past middle life usually have some kidney or bladder disorder that saps the vitality, which is naturally lower in old age. Foley's Kidney Remedy corrects urinary troubles, stimulates the kidneys, and restores strength and vigor. It cures uric acid troubles by strengthening the kidneys so they will strain out the uric acid that settles in the muscles and joints causing rheumatism. Peoples Drug Store.

Border Damage Claims.

The border damage claims against the United States are like Banquo's ghost, always reappearing and will likely keep on reappearing from time to time unless the government in a moment of righteousness does justice by paying them.

Two bills have been introduced in the present session of Congress in the matter of War Claims. One was introduced by Congressman Moon of Philadelphia for the relief of the heirs of Dr. Samuel E. Hall, deceased. Dr. Hall during the battle lived on the Mill road between the Fairfield road and Chambersburg turnpike, at the point known for years as the Commons. Before the War he had lived on York Street in house now owned and occupied by Edward P. Miller and had his office in a one story house on the east side of his house which was torn down many years ago. The text of the bill appeared in Congress and referred to committee on War claims is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to the heirs of Doctor Samuel E. Hall, deceased, late of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, the sum of four hundred and forty-four dollars and twenty-five cents, the damages assessed by the commission appointed for that purpose, to reimburse said heirs for the loss sustained during the invasion of the Confederate forces in July, eighteen hundred and sixty-three.

The text of the second bill to reimburse and indemnify the town of Frederick, introduced by U. S. Senator Smith of Maryland in the Senate and referred to the Committee on Claims is as follows:

Whereas the said town of Frederick was loyal to the Union during the late civil war, and the said State of Maryland fully complied with all requisitions made upon it by the Government of the United States for the prosecution of said war, and the said State of Maryland, and the said town of Frederick, as one of the municipalities thereof, were entitled to be defended by the Government of the United States against hostile acts and invasions of the Confederate troops; and

Whereas in the year eighteen hundred and sixty-four the State of Maryland was without the means of defending itself and the said town of Frederick against such hostile acts and invasions, its home-defense forces having been appropriated by the Government of the United States and transferred by said Government beyond the limits and control of said State, and the Government of the United States did not defend the said State and town, although called upon and in duty bound so to do, and by reason of the failure of the Government of the United States to provide such defense the said State was invaded and the said town of Frederick was seized and occupied by the Confederate army under Jubal A. Early; and

Whereas in July, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, General Jubal A. Early, with a Confederate army of thirty thousand, invaded the town of Frederick on his way to Washington, intending by a rapid movement to effect the capture of the capital by surprise; and

Whereas in consequence of information sent to the Government by citizens of Frederick it was forewarned and enabled to oppose the movement by a small force of six thousand men, under the command of General Lew Wallace, who, in the battle of Monocacy, delayed Early a day, which was of vital importance to the Government in putting Washington in a state of defense; and

Whereas the Confederate general, in punishment of said town for sending such information, and thus entirely defeating his plans, levied and exacted from said town, containing a population of only eight thousand, the excessive and enormous sum of two hundred thousand dollars, under pain of the pillage and burning of said town; and

Whereas at the time of such levy and exaction there were commissary and quartermaster stores belonging to the Government in the numerous warehouses of said town amounting to several hundred thousands of dollars, all of which was protected from pillage and destruction under the agreement between the Confederate general and the town authorities that no property of any kind was to be taken or disturbed, which compact was honorably observed; and

Whereas the great and important services rendered by the said town exempt its claim for reimbursement from the ordinary class of claims for losses and depredations in time of war and constitute it an exceptional case, appealing not to the generosity but to justice of Congress; and

Whereas in immediate consequence of said levy and exaction the said town has been compelled ever since to carry a large bonded indebtedness, which remains as a present obligation and constitutes a burden not justly to be borne by the citizens of the said municipality; Therefore

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the sum of two hundred thousand dollars be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, and that the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, directed to draw his warrant upon the Treasurer of the United States for the payment of the said sum of two hundred thousand dollars to the mayor and aldermen of Frederick, in the State of Maryland, for the use and benefit of the citizens thereof, by way of reimbursement and indemnity to said municipality for its loss sustained on account of the said levy and exaction imposed and made as a reprisal and retaliation against the Government of the United States.

By EDITH BOWMAN.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"That's what I call some package," cried Hosmer proudly as he held aloft a round metal package decorated with a smiling face which was sandwiched between the legend "You can smile—if you use Dentola."

"It is pretty," conceded the head of the firm as he took the can into his hands and inspected it more carefully. "Some actress, isn't it? Her face seems familiar."

"Actress nothing," was the contemptuous retort. Hosmer could afford to be flippant when he scored a success. "That's the little typewriter over in the shipping room. I caught her smiling like that one day, and it made a hit with me. I invented the powder to go with it. It's the old 'Saponica,' with a little carmine put in to make it look different. I tell you, Mr. Powers, in a week that Dentola girl will be known all over the country, and the sales—well, I'll be around for a raise in salary in about five weeks."

Powers smiled and nodded. Hosmer had a regular scale of self praise. When he suggested that the firm owed him a hat for an idea it was only an ordinary hit. The hint that he lunched about 2 o'clock was a sign that he had greater confidence in an idea. The last time that Hosmer had announced that he was worth a raise in salary was when he had introduced "sunburn cream" which eventually had brought the cosmetic company very nearly a quarter million.

Dentola seemed destined to enjoy a more permanent success. Within two months the Dentola girl smiled upon the entire nation. Even in the tiny hamlets Dentola placards adorned the general stores.

The Dentola girl smiled life size upon the city throngs, and more than life size she beamed at train tired travelers along the trunk lines.

Vaughn, the head of the shipping department, was rather vexed over the incident. He had supposed that the picture was merely to be used to decorate the cans of powder.

It became something of a nuisance when visitors to the model factory of the cosmetic company insisted upon seeing the original of "Miss Dentola." Vaughn, resentful of the admiring glances of the masculine visitors, protested to Hosmer.

"It's all a part of the campaign," declared the sales expert, with a laugh. "Miss Dentola is the best saleswoman that ever was. We sold more than a million boxes last month, and the orders are still piling in. I tell you, then, it pays to advertise when you advertise right."

"Sure," assented Vaughn, "but you're overdoing it. We wanted to sell the tooth powder, not to bring people to the factory to see Miss Dentola. There was a chap in yesterday who said he had seen the pyramids and the Sphinx and the tower of Pisa and all the other show spots of Europe, but he felt he couldn't go back to Montana until he'd seen Miss Dentola. By the way he looked at her I guess he would have liked to take her back to Montana with him. He's only one. There's hundreds. It's all Miss Pryor can do to keep her work up."

"I'll take her over in my department," offered Hosmer, with suspicious readiness. Vaughn shook his head.

"She would have to learn an entirely new line of work," he objected. "She knows the shipping game now. Let her stay, even if your ads. are a nuisance and worse."

"But I think she ought to be in my department," urged Hosmer. "It is in the advertising end that people would expect to find her."

"You get out of here," demanded Vaughn, half in friendliness and half very much in earnest. He had had Minnie Pryor in his department for more than two years and had given her scarcely a look until Hosmer had made her nationally famous.

When men in Alaska began to send proposals of marriage to the girl, Vaughn began to realize that his assistant was decidedly pretty, and as this knowledge came to Hosmer about the same time there ensued a pretty race for favor.

Minnie Pryor, finding herself in demand for the first time, developed into a beauty. So long as she had been merely Minnie Pryor, typist, she had gone her quiet way, but now Joseph Powers, president and practical owner of the corporation, insisted that she be given a royalty on the use of her picture, and, though this was but a fraction of a penny per box, the general use of photographs enabled her to develop into a beauty for the first time in her narrow life.

With the purchase of better clothes, she had seemed to acquire that indefinable charm which belongs to the woman who knows herself to be in demand. She did not develop what Hosmer was wont to term "big head," but she held herself well, and the apologetic little typist of the shipping room had become the belle of the cosmetic company's works.

Hosmer had his room papered with her pictures, and the more he saw them the more deeply in love with the original did he sink. Vaughn had but one of the posters in his office, for he did not need them with the girl herself bending her shapely head over the desk by the window, and he, too, was very much in love.

In the office both men made the best use of their time, but once the closing time arrived Miss Pryor disappeared.

Early in the campaign Powers had suggested that the liberal use of her face had rendered the girl rather conspicuous, so the company had a carriage that took her to and from her work.

At first Hosmer had approved the suggestion, but now he went to the other extreme. There was no chance to walk home with Miss Pryor, and his request for permission to call was met with a polite negative.

He and Vaughn could only fight it out during office hours, and when Vaughn objected to Hosmer's continued presence in the shipping department and asked Powers to give Hosmer a hint to that effect the sales expert retaliated by again reverting to his suggestion that Miss Pryor should be transferred to the sales office.

The constant bickering could have but one effect. From surliness they passed to open warfare, and at last they brought the matter to the head of the firm.

Each pleaded his case, and then they stood waiting the decision with an anxiety that showed plainly in their faces. Each felt that a victory with the chief would aid his fight, and the moments that passed after the case had been stated were painful to them both.

Powers glanced slowly from one to the other, and his face broke into a smile.

"You both say that you have the right to Miss Pryor's services," he began slowly. "I'm afraid that you will both have to hire other typists. Miss Pryor tells me that you both are—er—rather cordial to her. It seems that you, Vaughn, have suddenly discovered that you need Miss Pryor. Only a little while before the advertising campaign was started you told me that you should have to put on another girl, as Miss Pryor was willing, but slow. I fancy that the way out of this will be to get another Dentola girl and another typist for the shipping department."

"There's no reason for such drastic action!" cried Hosmer, but Powers only smiled again.

"There is an excellent reason," he said slowly. "I am to marry Miss Pryor. She did me the honor to accept me, and as soon as the Dentola craze is forgotten we will be married. Meanwhile she has her royalty from the use of her picture, and she will not need her position. She would have told you this, Vaughn, had you waited until this afternoon."

Vaughn, too dazed to speak, turned and left the office, and Hosmer was about to follow when Powers detained him with a word.

"You said that you would win a raise on Dentola, and you have," he said kindly. "It pays to advertise. Paul."

"Yes, when you have something to sell," agreed the expert, "but I was trying to sell Dentola, not Miss Dentola. The next time I get out a good article I'm going to marry the original first and advertise afterward."

"Miss Pryor and myself are very grateful to you," said Powers, with a cordial hand clasp, "and I hope that you find another Dentola, Paul."

"And I bet I won't lose her to any other man," was Hosmer's grim reply.

Cretan Seals.

Some of the greatest scholars have used their learning more as a weapon than a means of illumination. Professor Lewis Campbell's gentleness and courtesy may be illustrated by the following true story: Some years ago he was in the chair at a meeting of the Hellenic society when Dr. Arthur Evans described the results of some of his first excavations in Crete. Among his finds were a number of seals and other relics showing traces of affinity with early Egyptian art. Discussion followed, in the course of which a venerable admiral, who had been present at the battle of Navarino, rose and said that he did not know whether he was in order, but he would like to state that in the year 1828, when he was cruising in the Levant, he saw a herd of seals off the coast of Crete—a sight which he had never seen before or since. The situation was delicate, but it was saved by the chairman, who rose immediately to express the thanks of the meeting to the admiral for his interesting reminiscence. "Here," he said, "we have another link with Egypt, for all of us must remember the story in the Odyssey of Proteus and his herd of seals on the island near the mouth of the Nile."—London Spectator.

Sick Folk's Fancies.

"Isn't it funny," said the brown-eyed woman, "how important some things are to you when you are sick and how trivial they seem when you get well? When I was ill awhile ago I could not take any water to drink, although I nearly died of thirst. But late every night the nurse would bring me a small glass of cracked ice. Oh, how I anticipated that thing through long and painful hours, and when I could bear her cracking up the ice the sound was the most beautiful thing in the world. When I was eating it if one little scrap got lost in the bedclothes I almost wept, so precious it was. And now that I am well and have the icebox at my command I wouldn't eat a piece for anything."

"A friend of mine, a strong man, told me that when he was recovering from typhoid and couldn't eat anything he would lie for hours composing menus. He would call out his orders in a loud voice and then nearly burst into tears when no waiter appeared with loaded tray. Sick people certainly are funny, though they can't always see it at the time."—New York Press.

Home Week for Emmitsburg

July 13th to 16th. The town will warmly welcome those who have been away for years, and great preparations are being made to give former residents and visitors a good time. There will be much handshaking and many interchanges of experiences when the old folks who left Emmitsburg a long time since, come back to visit the old town during Home Week. July 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th are the dates set for this big affair. All the citizens of Emmitsburg have formed themselves into one big committee on Hospitality, and those who revisit the scenes of their youth; all who return to meet again the relatives and friends from whom they have been parted for years, will find a royal welcome awaiting them.

The various organizations that will have charge of the arrangements promise many interesting attractions for that week, and among them may be mentioned a Trades Parade including many floats, a G. A. R. assembly and review, a moon-light carnival, fireman's parade, races, tournaments and sports of all kinds, numerous exhibits, interesting lectures, nightly display of fireworks, and a monster family picnic, bringing together all the old Emmitsburgians and their friends. A very large crowd is expected, and all who come will remember the good time for the rest of their lives.

The Nuisance of the Big Hat.

The Western Christian Advocate, a Methodist periodical recently editorially said:

"It quite frequently falls to our lot to sit in the pews with the congregation, and it is not at all conducive to pious and peaceful frame of mind, such as one ought to have when trying to worship God, to sit behind rows of hats that spread themselves like green bay trees or circus tents. One feels like taking a shot at them with a hymn book and humbling their lofty pretentiousness and pride in the dust."

"What are our Christian women thinking of? Are they such devotees of fashion that they must needs haul these unseemly, hideous, outlandish constructions to church with them to make the devout groan and the undevout almost swear? It's hard enough to get people, especially men, to attend church regularly these days, and we don't want anything that will discourage their coming and make things more difficult for the minister."

"It is our solemn conviction that this, which looks like such a trivial matter, amounts almost to an absolute moral offence and sin."

ANOTHER FIRE IN FAIRFIELD.

FAIRFIELD, April 19.—Fire destroyed the Fairfield "Herald" printing office on Monday night, April 12. About half past eleven o'clock the fire was discovered by Miss Fannie Snyder who has a restaurant across the street from the "Herald" building. Until help arrived and bucket brigade formed from a spring and nearby stream, the fire was so far advanced that it was impossible to save the building, and only a few items of the contents were carried out of the building. The business was operated and the building owned by Ruell Diller, who estimates his loss at one thousand dollars. The building and contents was insured for $800. The Adams County Mutual Fire Insurance Company having $850 of insurance and the Gettysburg Mutual Fire Insurance Co. $450. BURGLAR ENTERS STORE

IRON SPRINGS, April 19.—The store at Iron Springs, owned by J. E. Kissinger, of Gettysburg, and conducted by John Baker, was entered by a burglar on last Thursday night. Between $4 and $5 was secured in cash and some fine shirts, underwear and pantaloons and different other articles. The discovery of the burglary was not made until the store was opened for business on the following day. The front entrance of the store was found to have been pried open. Mr. Baker lived in an adjoining house and heard nothing of the burglary during the night. Mr. Baker is of the opinion that it was the work of one man and that he was not a professional at the business. This is the first time that the store has been known to have been robbed. The route then follows the pike through Lewistown, Catactin Furnace, Thurmont, Mt. St. Mary's, Emmitsburg and through to the Mason and Dixon line.

Pennsylvania ought to build a State road to meet the Maryland State road.

ECZEMA CURABLE? PROVEN!

Attorney at Moline, Ill., Convinced by Oil of Wintergreen Compound.

There is nothing that will convince a lawyer except evidence.

Now, here is some rather startling evidence of a simple home cure for eczema which convinced one lawyer, F. C. Entriken, attorney at Moline, Ill. He tells how oil of wintergreen compound mixed with thymol and glycerine, as in D. D. D. Prescription, cured him in thirty days after 32 years of suffering.

"For 32 years," writes Attorney Entriken, "I was troubled with eczema scabs all over my face, body and head. I could run a hair brush over my body and the floor would be covered with scales enough to fill a basket. I tried everything—salves, internal medicine, X-Ray—all without result."

"Just a month ago I was induced to try D. D. D. Prescription. The itch was relieved instantly, so I continued. It is just a month now and I am completely cured. I have not a particle of itch and the scales have dropped off."

"I can only say again Cure Discovered. I am now starting all eczema sufferers on the right track."

Cure after cure has been brought to our attention and always that instant relief from the awful itch.—The People's Drug Store, Gettysburg, Pa.
